I hope that everyone is doing well. We have transitioned into the school year well, yet not without its changes. We'll get to those in a moment. It seems that fall is almost here, and we all know that it's time for some football. A new start to a new school year is always a good thing. This year at theWell we began going through Psalm 1 to compare the differences between the 'blessed' man and the 'wicked' man. After this, we be will going over the 'Gospel-Centered Life for teens'. It was such a good study, it would be very helpful for us to go through it all together and spend more intentional time together engaging what it means to be gospel-centered.

On to the changes. This last month we had to say goodbye to one of our dearest supporters and helpers in this ministry. As you may not be aware, Joel and Amanda McKinnon have recently moved out of the area because of a job change. Joel has been serving for over 6 years in the student ministry with me side by side every step of the way. The Lord has used him greatly to impact many students throughout the years, but also to encourage this student pastor. He has been a good friend and brother in Christ. We are all very grateful for them, but saddened by the void that is left. Yet we need to be reminded once again, many times, that our God is sovereign over everything. He always provides.

Starting once again this month, we have guy's and girl's groups coming back online. These groups are basically for the purpose of discipleship. Jesus clearly commands those that have the ears to hear to 'Follow Me' and we hear the Apostle Paul echoing the same idea to follow him as he follows Christ. This is the idea that we are looking for in these groups that our students can more intimately follow one that is following Christ. I know that the college students are excited to lead your students if they want to participate and I believe that our students want more of these types of connections. D-groups will meet on Sunday afternoons at 5pm starting September 13th.

In Christ,
Pastor Ben Roberts
